Koalas nap for around 10 hours every day?

- A. True
- B. False

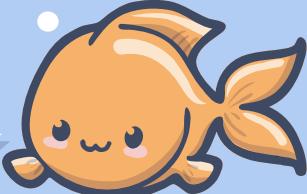

“A koala is not a bear but a marsupial (pouched mammal).

Koalas sleep for up to 18 hours a day because the calorific value of their food is so low and they need to conserve their energy.

“ Koalas suffer from chlamydia and the disease has caused a fifteen per cent drop in their numbers.

The female platypus is venomous ?

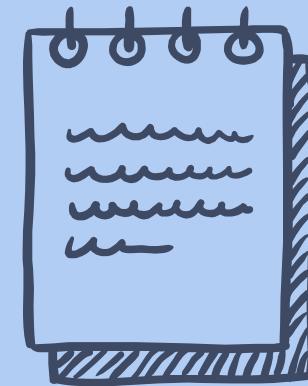

- A. True
- B. False

Actually it's the male platypus that is venomous.

They have spurs on the back of their hind feet that are connected to a venom-secreting gland.

The venom is not life-threatening to humans, but it can cause severe swelling and pain.

Tasmanian devils are only found in Tasmania ?

- A. True
- B. False

“ Tasmanian devils are only found in Tasmania now.

This is due to the introduction of the dingo on the mainland, which led to their extinction.

Quokkas are always smiling ?

- A. True
- B. False

Oho...

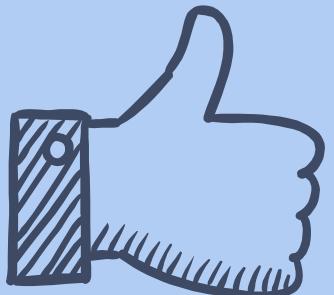

Technically, the reason why a quokka looks like it's smiling is due to the way its mouth is shaped.

Quokkas open their mouths to pant when they get hot resulting in that little "smile" we see.
